Building Surveying Experience

Darryl's building industry experience commenced on site as a tradesman developing a broad knowledge of building and the building industry. Studies in building surveying resulted in a move to local government where he gained extensive experience in a range of development types from domestic to multi-storey residential and commercial buildings. This time in local government also provided Darryl with invaluable experience in the areas of project management and asset management.

Since joining Katnich Dodd, Darryl has been responsible for a wide range of projects including domestic, as well as small and large scale commercial. Darryl's customer focus, love of problem solving and outstanding people skills has made him the desired point of contact for many in the building industry.
